

We always thought that Home Health Care was something that “old” people used who were unable to get out of bed to see the doctor. We never considered that we would be eligible for their services.

But when Martha broke her hip and we were unable to get her to see the doctor for check-ups, we called the nurses at Home Health Care. Not only did they come for her check-ups, but they also set us up with a great physical therapist to help her get back on her feet.
